Mrs. Mary Schlegler, 76, widow of Conrad Schlegler, suffered fractures of both ankles and a left elbow laceration at 5:15 p. m. Monday when she was knocked down by the automobile of Mrs. Bina Bauman of Cincinnati.

Whether the car ran over Mrs. Schlegler, a resident of E. Ohio-st, is not certain. Several witnesses said they thought it did, while others were not certain. Dr. H. D. Mrs. Schlegler was taken to Berger hospital in the Abaugh ambulance. Later in the evening she was returned home.

Two children accompanied the Cincinnati woman. They were returning home after a trip to Columbus.

Beaten to Death by Secret "Army"?

CONTINUING their investigation into activities of the Black Legion, secret vigilante society, Michigan authorities held May Ernest, left, a guard at the Southern Michigan prison at Jackson for arraignment on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Ernest denied any connection with the reported flogging of Paul Every, right, also a prison guard who died April 14 of what physicians pronounced heart disease and diabetes. Every's wife previously had told Prosecutor Owen Dudley of Jackson county that her husband was flogged because he tried to withdraw from a secret organization headed by Ernest. Meanwhile, in Detroit, Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said murder warrants would be issued for seven men present at the "execution" of Charles A. Poole, WPA worker, who reportedly was shot to death by members of the Black Legion on reports Poole had beat his wife. The wife denied her husband had ever beat her.

$250 Animal Grazing in Field; Thief Hunted

Horses stolen from C. E. Roof, local trainer, and two Jackson-co men, last week, were found Monday afternoon grazing in a blue grass pasture at Georgetown, Ky., about 12 miles from Lexington.

They were traced in a 450-mile trip made by Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Mr. Roof and Sheriff Preston Turner of Jackson-co. Tracing the horses, the sheriff said, was the result of information furnished by a resident near Wellston and the truck driver.

The men checked dealers and trainers between Circleville and Cincinnati. They learned the driver of the truck, used to haul the horses, had left his name with an apple grower near Wellston.

Sheriff Radcliff said the truck driver, Elias Thomas, Sycamore-st, Cincinnati, supplied them with information concerning the horses and where they had been taken.

He told the sheriff the horses were taken into Kentucky through Indiana and G. T. Coleman, the man who worked the swindle, attempted to sell them to a dealer in Williamstown before going to Continued On Page Two

As a result the score stands at three to nothing in favor of the Townsends.

Treasury Office Speeding Work on Veterans' Bonds

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(UP)—Men, women and machines in the treasury department's public debt division were working on a 24-hour a day basis today to place soldiers' bonus bonds and checks in the mail by June 15 or soon thereafter.

Treasury officials estimated that nearly 1,400 persons were employed in Washington in this task, and that throughout the country the number will total approximately 4,000. In addition to these employees, the treasury department has pressed into service modern machines capable of writing and signing 25,000 checks a day. (One is shown below).

The soldier's record is checked and verified by the Veterans' administration, and the amount of bonus payment to which he is entitled is certified to the disbursing officer of the treasury.

There each record is re-checked in every detail and it is sent to the disbursing officer. A stencil is then cut, giving the name and address of the veteran the amount of the check to be made out to him.

The stencils are placed in a machine which automatically makes out the checks which are passed on to the engraving bureau where the stencils again are used in making out the bonds due the veteran.

First deliveries to the veterans themselves are scheduled for June 15.

New Device Speeds Bonus Checks

Hunsicker One of Four Trying to Find Solution to Relief Question

Clark K. Hunsicker, Pickaway-co representative in the general assembly, started work Monday afternoon on one of the most important committees in the present session of the legislature. He was appointed a member of the subcommittee of the house finance committee to study Governor Davey's plan to finance poor relief during the remainder of the year.

The "stop-gap" measure supported by the governor was voted last week, and will be effective until the committee is successful in working out a program satisfactory to the governor and both houses.

The finance committee will conduct hearings in which chairman of the various commission boards will supply data to be used in writing the relief bill.

Five Men Killed as Fire Sweeps Jersey Forests

50,000 Acres of Timber Land Destroyed in Five Counties; CCC Workers Trapped in Flames

TUCKERTON, N. J., May 26.—(UP)—A forest fire which burned five men to death and ravaged 50,000 acres of cranberry bog and shrub timber land was burning itself out today.

Unless wind arises and whips the dwindling flames over fire lines. Danger of additional damage appeared remote.

A half dozen fires smoldered in five southern New Jersey counties but the most destructive blaze was between Tuckerton and Chatsworth. This fire started Saturday night and reached its peak shortly before last midnight when it trapped a group of CCC workers and other volunteer fire fighters.

One of the victims was Ira Morey, 35, of New Gretna, son of Albert Morey, a sectional fire warden. A brother, William Morey, was one of eight men seriously burned. Seven Deaths in Wayne-Co Studied as Possible Work of Vigilantes

DETROIT, May 26.—(UP)—Bombings and arson were charged against the Black Legion today as plans moved forward to subject the hooded and robed vigilante organization to a state-wide grand jury investigation.

DETROIT, May 26.—(UP)—Attorney General David H. Crowley decided today to order a state-wide grand jury investigation into the secret terroristic society, the Black Legion, while officials intimated that it was organized on a national basis and represented a district menace to American democracy, particularly to such minorities as Roman Catholics and Jews.

While Crowley seemed to have the sanction of the state police, Mayor Frank Couzens of Detroit placed the municipal government in the fight. He announced that he would ask Police Commissioner Heinrich A. Pickert to provide a list of city employees suspected of belonging. These will be discharged summarily, he said.

Grand Jury in Session

Crowley's investigation will become the fourth looking into the lynch-law activities of the hooded fanatics who are known to have killed one man and are suspected of killing and flogging men throughout Michigan. But his will be the one with the most power. With a grand jury functioning in Jackson, Crowley will be able to subpoena witnesses from every part of the state.

Crowley told the United Press that he planned to confer with Oscar G. Olander, commissioner of state police, today, and then would order the state grand jury investigation.

In Wayne-co (Detroit) Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea revealed evidence tending to show the Legion organized in all parts of the United States. The country is divided into 13 sectors, each commanded by a general who is responsible only to the national commander-in-chief, a mysterious person. Continued On Page Two

SHIPS FORESEEN WITH STEEL COVERING

SHEFFIELD, Eng. — (UP) — Stainless steel ships and stainless steel bridges have been brought within the range of practical possibility by a manufacturing process invented by F. F. Gordon, Sheffield steel expert. Gordon says the process will reduce stainless steel production costs by 50 per cent.

The outstanding feature of the invention, which has been patented over the world, is the production of a cheap mild steel plate with a stainless veneer.

It is said that but for the necessity of allowing for corrosion, the plates of ships could be made 20 per cent thinner or even less, with consequent saving in gross weight and increased carrying capacity.

Shipowners are put to heavy expense by having to send their vessels repeatedly into dry dock for the removal of barnacles from the hull. Experiments are said to have proved that barnacles will not adhere to stainless steel.

MAYOR COUZENS ORDERS DETROIT POLICE TO ACT

sonage—"Shot-Gun" Shepherd. He intimated that he would ask the co-operation of Indiana and Ohio authorities. Those states with Michigan comprise the Legion's "north-west sector."

"I believe we have just scratched the surface of an inquiry that will be national in scope," McCrea told the United Press.

Like Storm Troopers

McCrea, Crowley, Prosecutor Owen Dudley of Jackson-co, and Justice of the Peace Ernest J. Rogers studied a mass of documentary evidence that in its implications tender to reveal the Black Legion as similar in many ways to the Nazi storm troopers who insure the iron-bound dictatorship of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany.

The individual members of the Legion were bound to blind obedience to their superior officers by frightful oaths. They were sworn to kill, falsify, or do anything else without question if and when ordered. Members who failed were threatened with summary death. This discipline gave Shepherd, the commander-in-chief, absolute, unquestionable power over the entire Legion, estimated to number 135,000 men in Michigan alone and an unknown number in the other states where it is organized.

McCrea's office pushed an investigation into seven strange deaths in Wayne-co, possibly attributable to Legion activities while Dudley directed the Jackson-co grand jury in a thorough investigation of the organization's ramifications among employees of the state prison. Organization memoranda and quantities of literature were seized in the home of one guard and a number of guards were suspected members. Dudley indicated that one or more guards would be indicted for possessing weapons illegally.

In Brighton-town, Justice Rogers planned to end his grand jury investigation tomorrow. He declined to reveal what had been discovered.

Crowley, Mayor Couzens, who is the son of Michigan's liberal renator, and other officials all were alarmed by indications that the Legion had extensive memberships among police forces, and among municipal and state employees throughout the state. They sought to learn if the Legion made an especial effort to enlist governmental employees.

Wherever officials turned, they encountered close-lipped men who denied they were legionnaires if there was no proof of their membership, or refused to deny or affirm affiliation where there was unquestionable proof.

STEVENS CITES DUTY OF STATE TO AID SCHOOLS

Foundation Program to Be Success if Ohio Abides
By Commitments

COLUMBUS, May 26 — The foundation school law will stabilize public school finances and permit operation of schools on a balanced budget in practically all districts by the end of 1936 if state commitments are met. This opinion was expressed by B. A. Stevens, research director of the Ohio Education Association, following visits to 40 Ohio counties to study the way in which the new law was working out. The impression is strong throughout the state that local boards of education will be able to operate their schools on a much more business-like basis.

The only exceptions, according to Stevens, are those districts which are suffering because of poor organization. "Failure of the state to meet its full obligations under the new law will result in another wave of unpaid teachers and bus drivers as well as accumulating deficits which will be reminiscent of the years of 1927 and 1934."

As a further result of his study, Stevens cites the imperative need for greater emphasis on the quality of the elementary school curriculum and instruction, consistent with the attention given to the high school program.

FORD APPOINTS SAFETY BOARD FOR HIGHWAYS

Executive Committee of Nine Announced; to Distribute Posters

An executive committee to handle business of the Pickaway-co Highway Safety Council was appointed Monday evening by A. J. Ford, chairman of the organization.

Members of the committee and the organization they represent on the council are: S. G. Rader, Rotary club; Paul Johnson, Methodist Men's club; Miss Hilda Burns, Business and Professional Women's club; Rev. Herman A. Sayre, Ministerial association; Glen Geib, Chamber of Commerce; Luther Bower, Lutheran Brotherhood; Dwight Steele, Kiwanis club; Miller Fissell, county officials, and Robert Young, American Legion.

Copies of the program recently adopted by the organization were distributed and arrangements will be made for distribution of posters and safety literature. The organization hopes to show a highway safety film at the next meeting and have the picture distributed among organizations taking part in the educational program.

The finance committee will be instructed to work out some system to obtain funds for the organization. Seven men attended the meeting.

Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell warned county motorists Tuesday to have their cars thoroughly checked before driving in the heavy traffic expected on Memorial Day.

He suggested they have their brakes, lights and tires checked and drive carefully.

Movie Makeup—An Art in Itself

HOURS of painstaking labor by a makeup expert in Hollywood can do this to a man—Jean Hersholt, character actor, being the man. At the left Hersholt is his natural self. At the right, Jean is a disheveled old man. The process consists of gumming Hersholt's hat flat on his head. A wig is then plastered on. Strips of tissue, soaked in collodion, are attached to his lower eyelids and then glued to his cheeks to cause the eye droop. Grease paint and an artificial beard complete the makeup.

Leader of Black Legion In Ohio Defends Program

Effinger, Speaking at Home, Says Organization to Continue Its Activity Promoting Best Interest

LIMA, May 26.—(UP)—Deploing what he termed "the unfortunate affair at Detroit," Vern F. Effinger, reputedly one of the Black Legion leaders in Ohio, said today the organization will "go right ahead promoting the best interests of America and American citizens."

In the basement of his modest home here, Effinger sat at a roll-top desk, a black two-gallon hat pushed back on his bald head, and a white statuette of a hooded figure looking down upon him.

"America today is cursed with too much liberty," he said.

His words supplemented a typewritten statement he had prepared, in which he denied knowing anything about the alleged Black Legion killing in Detroit. It said the black legion deplores anything of that nature.

The statement claimed that the Black Legion has 6,000,000 members.

Effinger, a large man with a booming voice, merely smiled when asked questions concerning the strength of the order in Ohio and its leadership.

"This is a secret organization," he said.

He denied emphatically that the Black Legion intends to establish a dictatorship.

"Why should we do that?" he asked.

"A two-party system is the only system," he said. "That's the way it always has been in this country. We are not political. We approve the best man for any office. These liquor men have got to be curbed. Liquor is the curse of the country."

Effinger twice has been a candidate for Allen-co sheriff. He came to Lima 20 years ago and engaged in the electrical contracting business. He formerly was a Ku Klux Klan member, he said.

"I'm not hiding from anybody and never have and never will," Effinger told a reporter.

Members of Effinger's family said they would be glad "when all this publicity is over."

ITALY ANGERED BY LONDON ACT

Ship Bearing Selassie Nearing Gibraltar Today

ROME, May 26.—(UP)—War talk was renewed today while Emperor Haile Selassie approached Gibraltar in a British warship on his way to London.

Mounting anger seemed to point clearly to a new period of dangerous tension. Great Britain was spotlighted once more as pursuing policies inimical to Italy.

Anger was expressed not only because Britain put a cruiser at the disposal of the emperor—called here "Signor Tafari"—but at the prospect, which Italians regard as a certainty, that with his arrival London will become a focal point for a campaign of anti-Italian propaganda.

Italians Alarmed

Under the surface, indications are that Italian leaders are really alarmed at what they consider the European situation.

This may explain why Premier Benito Mussolini conferred yesterday with Ulrich Von Massell, German ambassador.

But—another possible reason for Italian anxiety — informed diplomats continue to believe that hints of a German-Italian rapprochement are a smoke screen. They believe that Germany has no intention of abandoning any possibility

New License Law "Moral Obligation" to D

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of articles on the drivers' license law which becomes effective in Ohio Oct. 1.)

By W. S. BITTNER

COLUMBUS, May 26.—(UP)—The new drivers' license law, coupled with its companion, the financial responsibility law, will bring a "moral obligation to bear on the motorists of Ohio, "in the of friendship with Britain for an alliance with Italy.

It is reported here that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler believes Germany can eventually absorb Austria without Italy's consent. Therefore, it is argued, Hitler has no reason to make "bargains" with Mussolini but on the contrary is likely to sit inactive and let Mussolini's anti-League, anti-Britain, anti-France tactics bring indirect fruits to Germany.

Italy is mentally and physically prepared for the outbreak of a war in Europe. But Mussolini hopes no such war will come, because it is not sure that Italy would be part of a winning combination.

opinion of Harold E. Culbert, assistant registrar of motor vehicles.

"The license registration and identification card will be a reminder to the motorist that safety is paramount on the highways," he said.

The driver will hesitate to drive without it because at all times any peace officer may stop him and require such identification, and presentation.

ASSIST OFFICERS

The licensing law will also serve to assist enforcement officials in checking on stolen automobiles, as the burden of the proof and right to drive rests solely with the driver and owner of the automobile.

The leaning of identification cards is also prohibited, the borrower and leaning party both subject to serve penalties for such procedure.

All law enforcement agencies in the state will be called upon to successfully assist in the administration of the new law.

In addition to conducting examinations, local police and members of the state highway patrol will be forced to bear the burden of enforcement.

The original bill does not provide funds to carry on this work, the originators of the bill believing that the revenues will care for clerical hire, and already established bureaus will see to enforcement.

However, the bill did provide that the motor vehicle bureau be granted $100,000 to set up the administrative machinery. This money borrowed must be repaid when sufficient revenues are received by the new licensing bureau.

Registrars in Charge

For the time being the law will be administered by the assistant registrar of motor vehicles, who will be fully expanded and at which the work will no doubt be assigned to a new bureau.

The bill was passed Dec. 3, 1937, in the general assembly and signed by Governor Dacey on Dec. 11. The assembly definitely delayed the effective date of the license law in order not to conflict with the motor vehicle licensing operations which are carried forward each year in March.

It was believed that the licensing period for each law would strike the "off" season of the other, and personnel could be thrown into a fast completion of each renewal operation annually. The separated effective and renewal dates are also designed to save money by utilizing already established agencies of motor vehicles licensing.

GRADUATION DAY

It is a great day for parents when their Tommy or Mary is perched up on some platform at a school or college, to read an essay, "speak a piece", or go through the motions of a graduating event. Even if the class is only finishing the work of the grammar school, it is the most notable event of that child's life so far, and the parent's heart almost bursts with pride.

"Examination day" in the old-time district school was once a grand event. It was a breathless moment when the black-coated school committee entered the room, which was filled with a hushed gathering of anxious pupils and admiring parents. The simple songs and recitations seemed to constitute in those times a marvelous display of learning and skill. When the chairman of the school board rose for his annual speech, it was like Demosthenes addressing his ancient Greek audience.

Today when the youngest graduates from high school, it is always a momentous event. The boy or girl has climbed a long hill, and is about to enter a new road of unknown experience.

If he has climbed well and faithfully, he is entitled to feel pride. Where many dropped out, he has shown ability to pull the load up hill. Any boy or girl who graduates with a good standing has won one of the most significant battles of life.

Circleville high school has its commencement next Tuesday. A splendid program is being arranged, and a number of outstanding students will be honored. It is probable the high school auditorium will be too small to accommodate the throng wishing to witness the ceremony. Practically the entire program will be in the hands of the graduating class members.

MILK PROBLEM UNSOLVED

MILK finds itself in this predicament: There is too much milk on the farm and the price is too low, whereas in the city there is not enough milk and the price is too high. Whatever success in eliminating the gap will render a great service to both producer and consumer as well as to make a great contribution to public health.

The American people today are consuming only 186 quarts of milk per person per year where as good health requires an average annual consumption of 300 quarts. And the only reason for this underconsumption is price. Enough is being produced to furnish every man, woman and child his quota.

Milk producers and distributors contend that the consumer is not paying too much to permit him to drink his fill, but that he has been spoiled. They feel that a larger part of the family income should go into the milk budget. The fact remains, however, that people are not drinking enough milk and cooks are using it sparingly. The result is a loss all the way back to the producer.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Probably the most thoroughly disgruntled individual in American politics is Senator William E. Borah. At least he is the worst disgruntled of any on the Republican side of the fence. On the Democratic side Al Smith's disgruntlement may equal the Idaho statesman's.

Whether or not Borah "takes a walk" at the Cleveland convention must depend on the character of the ticket nominated and the platform adopted there.

Maybe he will swallow the G. O. P.'s candidatorial selections and statement of its policy anyway. He always has, except once. It is not quite true that he never bolted in campaign time. He was "off the reservation" the first time William J. Bryan ran, but even then he was not a very conspicuous Republican outlaw.

INTERESTS COMPLICATED
 Borah's senatorial interests complicate the situation for him. He is up for renomination and re-election, he has, for example, secured the prospect of reelection from Governor as the Democrats' contender for his seat.

Many politicians have guessed that he was not very confident of being presidentially named at Cleveland; he could account for being beaten on the ground that he is too old—past 70. But it was surmised that he wanted to make a formidable showing at the G. O. P. gathering, by way of increasing his Idaho prestige and improving his senatorial chances against Ross.

NOT WORKING OUT

This reasoning might have been all right if events had transpired according to Hoyle.

Idaho selects its senatorial candidates considerably later than the Republican national convention. Thus Borah is in a position to seek senatorial renomination even if presidentially defeated. And, assuming his display of a deal of presidential strength in Cleveland, it is conceivable that the Idaho electorate should say, "Here's too big a man to lose." A senator isn't too old at 70.

WILL MAKE NO DENT

But Borah evidently will make no considerable dent at the Republican convention.

The primaries have proved that. He appears to have so little influence that it is doubtful that he will create much of a sensation even if he "takes a walk."

Besides, suppose he does "take a walk?" Then he will have to run senatorially as an independent. Chances of independents always are dark.

WHY NOT VOTE FOR F. D. R.?

Former Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio "said it" when he remarked:

"A conservative who wants to vote conservatively may as well vote for Roosevelt as Borah." Yet the progressives of both parties always have reckoned that the Idaho senator never was progressively dependable in election time.

TRAGEDY?

It is tragic that, in the evening of his life, the country's foremost radical is a "red" to conservatives and unreliable to liberality.

Like Al Smith, he is a poor loser, too.

MCCARL'S ENEMIES URGE OUSTER

WASHINGTON—What to do about Comptroller General J. Raymond McCarl is causing considerable discussion in the inner circle of White House counselors.

Appointed by President Harding, the fifteen-year term of the heavy-set, Windsor-tie-wearing Nebraska Republican expires July 1. Under the law he cannot be reappointed.

Some of the militant left-wing New Dealers are after McCarl's scalp. They charge him with trying to hamper the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Public Works Administration and other New Deal undertakings. They are urging that he be ousted from the government service.

Other Administrationites take an entirely different view.

They make the surprising suggestion that McCarl should not be dropped, that instead his unexcelled knowledge of government business should be utilized in the office of Budget Director.

This job has been vacant since Lewis Douglas broke with the President in the summer of 1934. Daniel Bell, a Treasury career man, has been filling the post as Acting Director. Roosevelt offered him the appointment but he declined, preferring to keep his high rank in Civil Service.

REAL SYMPATHY

Retorting to the complaints against McCarl by the left-wing New Dealers, his friends in the inner circle group contend that he has been cooperative and sympathetic.

They point out that Harry Hopkins as Relief, Civil Works and Works-Relief Administrator, General Hugh Johnson as NRA boss, Morris Cooke as head of the Rural Electrification Administration, and other top-rung New Deal executives have never had difficulty with the Comptroller General.

The argument is also advanced that if McCarl, noted as a watch-dog of the Treasury, became Budget Director, the Administration would have an effective answer to Republican attacks about extravagance and reckless spending.

CONVENTION PROGRAM

Charley Michelson, political pundit of the Democratic National Committee, is planning a 200-page program for the Philadelphia Convention. That is 100 pages more than was ever dreamed of before by either party.

Advertising in the Democratic Convention Program will cost $2,500 per page, and is being sold by a staff of high-pressure salesmen to space-buyers who know on which side their bread is buttered. Advertising alone is supposed to net $250,000.

Charley hopes to sell 100,000 copies at Philadelphia. Guests and delegates will be "invited" to purchase special copies at $2.50.

Since the textual matter is obtained free from various government press staffs, the net profit should be around $150, which may earn another $150,000 for the Democratic Party, making a total of $400,000.

wrong with the system of distributing milk. Why not get to the seat of the trouble while everybody agrees that something should be done? Surely there are alternatives for the present system or the deficient features of it.

Joan Spencer, school teacher in a small town, is shocked to learn from her married sister, Dorothy, with whom she lives, that Stephen Winlock, a young physician practicing in New York, has announced his engagement. She and Win had expected to be married. By a mistake, Joan received a letter from Julian Sloane, noted playwright, granting her an interview for a secretarial position.

CHAPTER 1

"JOAN SPENCER, have you lost your mind? Do you mean to tell me that you'd take advantage of a letter intended for another girl?" Dorothy exclaimed in shocked surprise. "Let's worry about that later." Some of the exultant gaiety left Joan. "Don't you see what this means, darling? Of course, nothing will come of it, but I'm in a state I'm upset by. Well, naturally by Win and everything. I'm sick to death of teaching school and—"

"But you just said nothing could come of it, so why do you entertain the idea at all?" Dorothy couldn't understand or follow Joan's reasoning.

"It's something to do! And something to do besides contemplating a summer spent going to the movies or knitting a new sweater suit is exactly what I need. Besides, I've never seen a real celebrity like Julian Sloane and if I arrive Saturday morning he will have to ask me to lunch. That will be something."

"I don't approve, Joan. I think the whole idea is quite mad. And I do think you ought to think of this other girl. She probably needs the job badly."

"If he's so much impressed with her letter, she'll get it. Not but what I could be a secretary. After all, I did earn my way through school doing stenography. Oh, don't worry, pet. I'm just doing it for a lark." Joan jumped up and kissed her sister, then she ran out-of-doors and pretended to study the growing progress of the tomato plants.

That night she sent one preconcerted letter to Julian Sloane, telling him she would arrive late Saturday morning.

Tuesday, Wednesday and finally Thursday, the last day of school arrived. Joan was better able now to understand her small pupils and the unbearable restlessness that stirred them. She, too, was waiting for school to be over.

"Just for one day," she murmured to herself, wondering what Julian Sloane was like. He'd probably wear great goggles, have no hair, be absent-minded and generally unattractive as all story book characters.

"After all, I don't expect anything of him. I'm not really going for a job as his secretary, so what does it matter? Somehow I'll glide gracefully over the mistake in names and withdraw completely but I do hope at least to meet an autographed copy of his latest book." Thus ran Joan's thoughts following the trend that if Mr. Evans didn't get his first edition out of her personal time, she got her first excitement from it.

Feeling a little silly to be thrilled over it and as excited as a 16-year-old at the prospect of her first party, Joan planned her Saturday.

It was a good 40 miles across country to the Connecticut sound where Julian Sloane's summer place was situated. In the Rattlebrain, which was Joan's name for her ancient car, she thought it would take a good two hours to make her destination. She'd leave home around 9:30. Then he'd have to ask her to lunch. She hoped there would be a Japanese butler and a cocktail.

"Might as well be sweet as short," she commented to herself, meaning the whole adventure.

"Who'd you think I'd better wear?" she asked her sister.

"Under the circumstances, I think a little white dotted Swiss with plenty of ruffles, a big blue sash and a picture hat would be correct." Dorothy answered shortly.

"You simply have no sense of adventure, darling, and sarcasm does not well become you, noble sister." Joan answered bitterly.

"Why ask me for advice? I don't see that you take it." "All right, I'll run up in a little white number. I think it will look fine in the Rattlebrain and the picture hat tied under my chin might give him an idea for a story." Joan refused to be properly impressed.

Dorothy didn't answer; she got up from the breakfast table and silently gathered up their coffee cups.

Joan sighed. "Dorothy, can't you see this whole thing? Or would you feel better if I broke down and wailed about Win?"

Dorothy stopped in the doorway with quick repentance. "All right, honey, if this is fun, have a good time. I don't want you to break down and cry over Win but you do act so unnatural about it. I can't help thinking that you are bucking up your pride."

"Maybe I am," Joan answered in a low voice. "I've been so busy at school I hadn't thought much about what it's going to be like. But when Win comes home bringing... her, I suppose everyone will be sorry for me. I can't even say that she broke off. They both knew that she couldn't even say that she and Win had talked it over and decided neither of them cared."

And both remembered in that instant that it was nearly a month since Win's engagement had been announced and he hadn't yet written to Joan.

"Don't you wear your dark blue print?" Dorothy said in a different voice.

Joan didn't hear her. Her eye followed the postman's car up the street.

And that was the day that Win's letter arrived. Joan took it to her room and sat down with trembling fingers to read the closely written pages.

The hardest letter I've ever had to write (he wrote). Believe I've tried to do it ever since I've known. I can't tell you how it began but it was different from the way it was with you and me. For that reason, I know that this cannot mean too much to you. You'll find the right man, just as I've found the right girl. (There was more of this.) I've only known Beatrice for a year and it happened quickly.

"You simply have no sense of ad-

he invited me to their home a few times and I got to taking her around. She hadn't known any older men and I guess I was a change from the usual college boy stuff. Anyway, I kissed her and there we were. As simply as that we were engaged. (Joan skipped the page on Beatrice's claims)... things aren't any different between you and me, old girl, and I'm looking forward to seeing you and to your seeing Beatrice. Joan tore the letter up into very small bits, slid the pieces into an envelope and put it in her pocket. She didn't want to talk to anyone about it. That was over and finished.

She was surprised to find two great tears slipping down her cheeks. She brushed them away angrily.

Saturday morning the hot sun streaming across her bed awoke her. Sleepily she drew off her clinging nightgown. The heat drained her of her anticipation. Now that her little adventure was under way, she wished she hadn't sent the wire.

She wished it a dozen times during the dusty trip as the Rattlebrain coughed and spluttered its jolting way over the roads.

Her blue linen frock was crushed and her face streaked with dust as she drove up the tree-shaded drive leading to a big white house that rambled gracefully amid its luxurious green surroundings. Julian Sloane must be a prosperous author!

She peered through the screened door into the big, cool hall and rang the bell.

"I'm Miss Spencer. Mr. Sloane is expecting me," she said to the white-coated Japanese who answered her ring.

"Certainly," he bowed. "Your bags?" she asked in stupid surprise.

He didn't seem surprised at her answer; with an obsequious "Will you follow me please," led her upstairs to the door of the largest, loveliest bedroom she had ever seen.

"There's all at the swimming pool. Mr. Sloane said you were to join them on the bed. He disappeared and in a moment returned with an armful of fresh rubber swim suits and leaving them on the bed, withdrew.

"Well!" Joan exploded her breath on the bed. "There's more than one way to find out what an applicant has!"

"LOVE WITH A LANGUAGE"

Love hath a language for all years—

Fond hieroglyphs, obscure and old—

Wherein the heart reads, writ in tears,

The tale which never yet was told.

Love hath his meter too, to trace

Those bounds which never yet were given—

To measure that which mocks at space,

Is deep as death, and high as heaven.

Love hath his treasure hoards, to pay

True faith, or goodly service done—

Dear priceless nothings, which outweigh

All riches that the sun shines on.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

HAVING NO LOSERS

REACHING an unmistakable grand slam through feature showing is the highest possible type of bidding, acquired only through rigid adherence to slam bidding rules formulated long before contract was generally played in this country. This type of bidding originated with a small group of auction players, who allowed a special bonus of 600 points for a small slam both bid and made, and a bonus of 1,000 points for a grand slam both bid and made. These methods were, to a large extent, formulated prior to 1920. They have been slightly broadened since, but not improved upon in principle. The hand today offered two experts an opportunity to bid a grand slam without sneezing.

Bidding went: West, 1-Heart, upon a slim hand; North, 1-Spade, East, 2-Spade, showing two things by his bid of opponent's suit: great support for his partner's hearts, and no losing spades, either because he was void of spades or because he held solid tops; West, 3-Club, to show the Ace, as ordered by East; North, 3-Diamonds; East, 4-Diamonds, again showing no losers in North's suit, and demanding further disclosures by West; West, 5-Club, showing the K, having previously shown the Ace; East, 5-Diamonds, demanding further disclosures by partner; West, 6-Clubs, showing the Q.

West had opened a single biddable suit and a hand with 2½ quick tricks, or two biddable suits and at least 2 quick tricks. East saw from his own hand and what partner had bid in clubs that the only possible losing trick, if any, must be in hearts. West might hold the K of spades or diamonds, which would be of no use to declarer. In that case West might hold 5 hearts headed by the Q (allowing opponents to win a trick with the K-X of hearts). It was conceivable that West held only 5 trumps headed by the 10, leaving the K-Q for opponents, but in that case the odds were all in favor of finding the two missing trumps divided 1-1 between declarer and dummy. A grand slam was about as plainly indicated as it ever can be. Having run things over in his mind East bid 7-Hearts.

No possible opening lead could have defeated the grand slam contract. As long as declarer held the A-K-Q of clubs, and the K-Q of hearts, the play was spread his hand, after North had led a club, hoping that South could run.

Modern Life Disproves Some Ancient Theories

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
 (1) THAT THE mind loses consciousness when the body falls from a great height.

It was all right to speculate on the pleasantest way of committing suicide, before modern life came along to give us some facts. In the old days they could be dogmatic about what was a pleasant in suicide experiences because no one came back to tell the story. But modern science has enough re-vivers and antidotes, and one thing or another, that we bring 'em back alive.

The pleasant sensation resulting from jumping off a high building used to be one of the speculations of the youth. But the parachute has taken the sting out of that. The idea was that the moment the body began to hurtle through space, it went into a pleasant unconsciousness and never knew what hit him. The parachute jumpers, however, feel three or four miles and testify that they are always perfectly conscious. Even so, a Russian pilot, fell four and a half miles before he pulled the parachute cord. The body going through space never attains a velocity of more than 118 miles an hour, according to experiments performed by the U. S. army air corps.

(2) That a drowning person comes to the surface three times and then sinks forever.

What happens in drowning varies with different cases. Most death is due to reflex action of water inhaled into the lungs, which stops respiration, and the body sinks at once. It isn't the fact that the lungs and stomach get water logged that is the cause of drowning. Sometimes the body is slightly greater than water (fresh water), so it sinks. Only the air in the lungs keeps it up. The drowning person may go down once, struggle to reach the surface, and do so. But in the process he breathes some water into the lungs and goes down again. He may repeat this several times.

(3) That powdered glass mixed with food will cause death.

We had this scare in the army during the World War. I notice that Dr. August A. Thomen, in his interesting book, "Don't Believe It," brings it up again.

In the army camps we had regular spells of hysteria when German spies had put powdered glass into the food or in the bodies. We fed dogs powdered glass and they thrived on it. Finally, two hardy medical officers ate a meal with powdered glass in it, in front of a company of the most panicky regiment. The good old human intestines covered the glass with mucus and it did no harm.

I understand that there are instances of murderers who confessed to having tried powdered glass on their intended victims in their first attempts, without fatal results, before resorting to the old reliable poisons.

$25,000 DAMAGE LISTED IN PARKERSBURG FIRE

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., May 26. (UP) — The Parkersburg Country Club, center of many of the city's social activities since 1903, was destroyed by fire Sunday, with a loss estimated at $25,000.

The fire was believed to have started from a short circuit in the wiring of the two and a half story club house. The flames threatened to spread to nearby summer homes but firemen, pumping water from the swimming pool, prevented further damage. The club house, which was six miles outside the city, probably will be rebuilt.

Gable and Dietrich Star in Legionnaire and Lady

Radio Broadcast of June 1 to Feature Two Screen Satellites; Joe Penner, Crosby?

Clark Gable and Marlene Dietrich will co-star for the first time on stage, screen or radio when they inaugurate the Radio Theatre broadcasts from Hollywood with "The Legionnaire and the Lady" on Monday, June 1. The radio dramatization of this play, based on the famous motion picture, "Morocco," will be broadcast over a WABC-CBS network at 8 p. m. (EST) with Cecil B. DeMille as the new producer of Radio Theatre.

Although both Gable and Miss Dietrich have been top-flight Hollywood "names" for several years they have never appeared in the movies together. Gable was star-ved several months ago in this series but Miss Dietrich will be making her Radio Theatre debut in the June 1 broadcast. She is also making her first appearance in a full hour radio drama. The teaming of the two together at the microphone in "The Legionnaire and the Lady" gives the Radio Theatre the greatest co-starring bill ever heard in a radio play.

"The Legionnaire and the Lady" is a romance of two oddly assorted people who meet in the place they have gone to forget the world—and find in each other reason for going on. It is the story of a café singer, Amy Jolly, and Sergeant Tom Brown of the Foreign Legion. Off in a blazing desert of northern Africa these two meet and fall in love. Separation and tragedy in this world of forgotten men almost kill their love but in the end strength of purpose wins and Amy Jolly, with a pack on her back, starts off across the desert with the other women who follow their men in the Legion.

It was the picture "Morocco" in 1930 which lifted Marlene Dietrich to Hollywood stardom almost overnight. Brought from Germany by the director, Josef von Sternberg, in this and later vehicles she became one of the greatest dramatic stars the screen has yet produced.

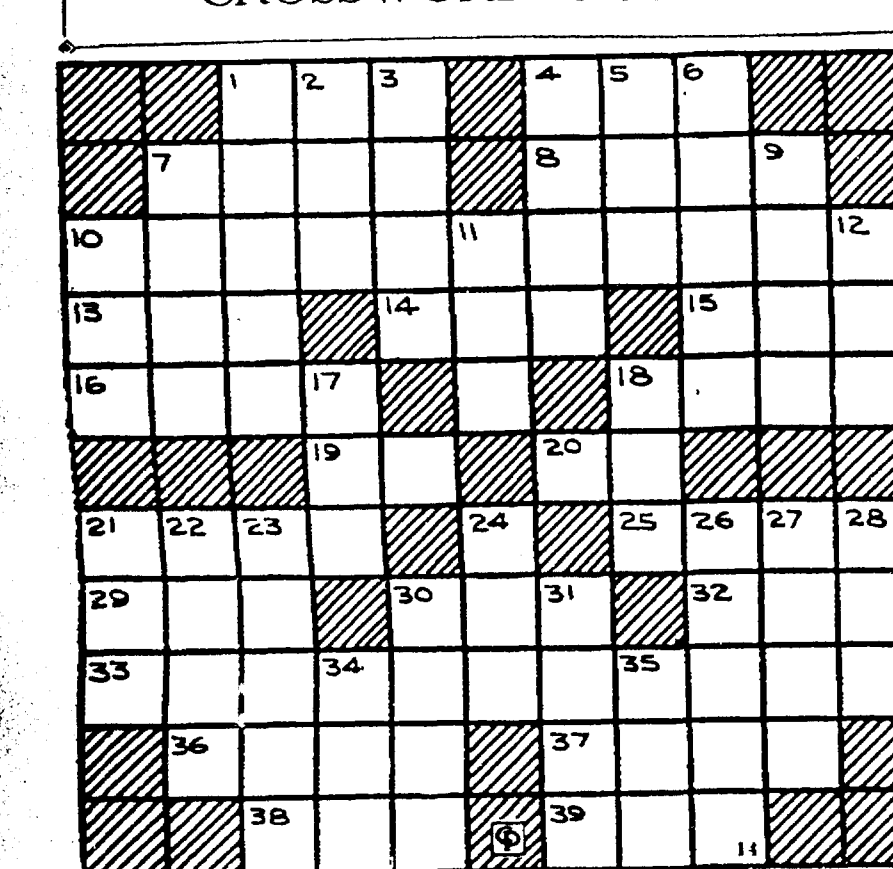

Gable was on the stage before he went to Hollywood and Broadway audiences saw him in "Machinal," "Hawk Island" and "Love, Honor and Betray." Last year he was in the picture picked as the best of the year by the Motion Picture Academy. "Mutiny on the Bounty." The year before he won the Academy acting award for "It Happened One Night."

Miss Dietrich has never appeared on the stage in the United States. She started her career in Berlin and later went into the movies there. Her first American picture was "The Blue Angel" and second "Morocco."

NOTES: You'll soon hear a new musical program, "Music Americana," using only songs of American composers, over Columbia network... Joe Penner and Bob Crosby band to be linked in a new air show. Starts in September with show written by Harry Conn, currently script writer for Jack Benny... Warner Brothers music played at Democratic convention in Philadelphia, opening June 23, may be aired by networks, the Warner outfit having given its o. k. However, NBC and Columbia have given no indication of lifting their ban on Warner music played over their chains... Not known yet who'll play for Benny when he renews his series next fall... Among tunes most played on the air now are "Melody From the Sky," "Robins and Roses," "Goody Goody" and "All My Life." But, of course, you know that, unless you happen to be deaf... Phil Baker will be off that program from June 21 to Sept. 20, vacationing; meanwhile Frank Crumit and Julia Sander-son will substitute for him.

GIVENS CAPTURE INITIAL CONTEST IN 'REC' LEAGUE

Cities Service Errors Play Big Part; Another Game Booked Tonight

Given Oils took advantage of Cities Service Oils misplays Monday evening and captured the first game in the softball league, 7 to 5. Neither team did much hitting, Eve Merriman's triple being the big blow of the evening, but the Givens bunched their efforts in three innings, the third, fifth and sixth to defeat the eastenders.

The Cities Service outfit tallied three markers in the second and two more in the seventh but could not get enough to tie the Givens after the colored boys were once in the lead.

Leonard Buskirk twirled a steady game, giving seven hits but seven errors did the work. Bob Jones gave up nine hits but his support, on the other hand, was brilliant with Walter Jones at first base playing a honey of a game.

Jones fanned two batters and walked one while Buskirk whiffed three and franked two to the initial sack.

Tonight the Eshelman Feeds and the Circleville Oils meet with Carl Purcell or Lloyd Leasure twirling for the Feeds and Bill Heggle for the Oils. The game starts at 6:30.

FIRPO HANDS KNOCKOUT TO ARGENTINA 'HEAVY'

SARIO, Argentina, May 26.—(UP)—Luis Angel Firpo, one-time "Bull of the Pampas," boasted another knockout in his comeback attempt today.

The 40-year-old Argentinian kayeod Ziska Habarta in three rounds last night. Habarta, of Poland, is a third-rater.

Firpo left for Cordoba today where he will meet Raul Bianchi, of Argentina, who has fought in the United States.

He's Pooshing 'Em

PUOSH-EM-UP Tony Lazzeri, the veteran second baseman of the New York Yankees, is really pooshing 'em up these days, his most recent accomplishment being to hit six home runs in two days (three games) and driving in 11 runs in one game for a new American league record.

About This And That In Many Sports

Changes in Coaching

Pickaway-co schools, many of them undergoing drastic changes in administration, will see a number of new faces in the coaching lineup next fall.

Four Are Certain

Four changes are certain; there are other possibilities—Jackson-twp will have a new mentor with Bob Terhune promoted to the superintendency; the same thing holds true at Washington-twp where Wendell Boyer has tried hard for a long while to make successful teams out of scant material. His crowning success, happily, came in his last year as a coach with Tom Reichelderfer, now a graduate, proving one of the outstanding sprint stars in central district class B circles. Raymond Hackney, coach but one year at Scioto, takes over the eighth grade position, and Karl Busch, who worked for two years with Perry-twp's teams has resigned.

Three Go On and On

While these changes are going on there are three coaches who remain perennials in their respective schools. They are Wilbur Griffith, Albert Kauber and Shad Saunders of Walnut-twp, Ashville and New Holland, respectively. All have been successful in their classroom work and on various fields of athletics. Griffith, it might be added, has been the most unlucky one of the band, often putting his cage teams in the runner-up position but never yet crashing through to a title, although his team of two years ago was a better one than that which won the county honor.

"Turkey" Leist Picker

Circleville has many racing fans but Wayne "Turkey" Leist is the addict of addicts. He figures the form sheets down to the unteeth of an ounce in weight the favorite will carry. The janitor wanted to print his selection for Boula and other parks but he said "No." Bissy, afraid to give someone else a break.

Yankees vs. Cardinals

This may be a second guess but it would seem that the New York Yankees, since the rejuvenation of Tony Lazzeri, and the St. Louis Cardinals, with Bud Parmelee delivering, are the teams to beat for the major league championship.

Open champion, Tor-chido, (Torchy) Toda, plays in the Metropolitan open tournament at Mamaroneck, N. Y. He is preparing for competition in the national open at Baltusrol.

GRIMM BENCHES PHIL CAVARETTA AS WEAK HITTER

CHICAGO, May 26.—(UP)—The champion Chicago Cubs staggered back into Wrigley field today with Manager Charley Grimm benched on first base once more scouting for a capable relief man.

Phil Cavaretta, prep school wonder who took Grimm's breath away with the ease with which he stepped into fast company a year ago, was benched indefinitely as the National league pennant-defenders fought off Cincinnati for a berth in the first division.

His hitting had plummeted to .250. The slump became so acute on the Cubs' rocky eastern tour, it began to affect the tall Italian youngster's work around first base. So Grimm is back, not to fire up the champions' attack with a flock of base hits, but just to "balance up the infield."

Bold Venture Retired From Racing For Year

Bowed Tendon Prevents Derby-Preakness Winner from Chance in Third Major Race of Year

NEW YORK, May 26.—(UP)—A great race was nothing but a dream today with withdrawal of Bold Venture, winner of the Kentucky derby and the Pimlico Preakness, from the Belmont stakes. The son of St. Germans—Possible missed his chance to wear the "triple" crown for three-year-olds by bowing a tendon in an easy six furlong workout yesterday. His owner, Morton L. Schwartz, and trainer, Max Hirsch, agreed there was nothing to do but retire him from training for a year.

The Belmont had shaped up as a racing classic with Bold Venture matching strides with Joseph E. Widener's Bravely, the horse he beat by a head at Churchill, and William Woodward's Granville, which he nosed out at Pimlico.

Owner Schwartz was so moved learning of Bold Venture's injury he would not talk. Trainer Hirsch resignedly made the announcement.

"We saw definite signs of trouble last week," he said. There was a slight swelling and fever in "BV's" right foreleg after working three-eighths of a mile. We hoped against hope it was not serious.

But with the Belmont coming, it was necessary to find out the colt's true condition. The leg apparently was sound and the fever and swelling had left, when he ordered yesterday's workout.

"Our suspicions were confirmed," he went on, "the swelling and the fever returned. He was a fine horse, maybe a great one, but we'll never know because by the time that leg is well, the Belmont and all the other rich purses for three-year-olds will be over."

A bowed tendon does not necessarily mean a horse's career is over. Careful training and exercise usually brings the tendon back to soundness, but that takes time.

If Bold Venture responds to treatment he will be in the handicapped division next year. He retires with three-year-old winnings of $55,800 and total winnings of $88,800.

MARR TAKES HOWELL'S PLACE AT U. OF MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, May 26.—(UP)—Charley Marr, former University of Alabama football star, has accepted the job as head coach at the University of Mexico, it was announced.

Marr who was line coach of the Mexicans last year wired from Pine Bluff, Ark., accepting the position vacated by "Dixie" Howell, who also starred with Alabama.

HURLERS FINALLY STOP SLUGGERS IN MAJOR LOOPS

NEW YORK, May 26.—(UP)—Seven, outstanding hurling performances in the major leagues diverted attention from slugging to pitching today.

While Sunday's play was featured by the booming of slugger artillery, yesterday's was quiet and orderly with three shutouts registered in the six games played.

Al Smith of the New York Giants and Joe Bowman of the Philadelphia Phillies turned in excellent performances. Despite holding the Giants to four hits while his mates got to Smith for five, Bowman lost his game 1 to 0. The margin of victory was Sambo Leslie's fourth inning home run.

Next best battle was between the St. Louis Cardinals, leaders of the National league, and the Chicago Cubs. It was a tight game, the Cards winning 8 to 1, although Paul Dean was nipped for 10 hits, three more than Bill Lee gave up.

The Cubs took a one run lead in the fifth, but Stu Martin's homer tied it in the sixth and Rip Collins' pinch single in the ninth drove Pepper Martin home with the winning run.

Red Lucas turned in a four-hit performance as the Pittsburgh Pirates downed the Cincinnati Reds 9 to 2. The Pirates who had been in a three way tie for third place with the Cubs and the Reds took sole possession of the position as a result of their win.

Higher education operates on the theory that you can get a bushel in a peck measure if you keep at it for four years.

UNKNOWN ENGLISHMAN ELIMINATES AMERICAN

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 26.—(UP)—E. M. Prain, an unknown English golfer, eliminated Ellis Knowles of Rye, N. Y., today, leaving only two Americans in the running for the British amateur title. Prain defeated Knowles one up on the 20th hole in a second round match.

a spare moment—he's usually composing a novelty song. He is one of those people of whom it is said "he was born with a 'business' head." At 8 years of age, he and an 11-year old confere put on a Minstrel show. After paying off the "performers" the young capitalists pocketed a tidy 20c each.

He would like to finish college at Notre Dame—and then to organize his own band.

It took 5 months—but he finally arranged a studio to his taste. He built it in the second story of the family garage. The apple of his eye is a piano he bought at auction for $6 and it occupies the most prominent spot in his sanctum sanctorum. Hates "belltlers."

His first job was working at a pop stand in front of the school during vacation time. Bought a set of drums at a second hand store with the money thus earned.

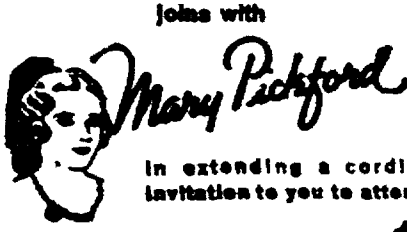

He's never suffered from stage fright... due, perhaps, to his rather secretive debut. He was the hind legs of a horse in the local minstrel show. He was also

NATIONAL GUARD OBSERVERS SENT TO STRIKE AREA

PORTSMOUTH, May 26.—(UP)—The 5,500 striking workers of the Portsmouth branch of the Wheeling Steel corporation marched before a cordon of city police today to receive $800,000 due them in wages.

Divided into groups of 500 each, workers received their pay at a downtown office. The plant, closed since last Friday by a strike, was deserted except for 300 pickets, and a guard of deputy sheriffs.

Governor Davey today sent Lieut. Colonels Leo M. Kreber and E. P. Lawler of the Ohio National Guard to Portsmouth as observers.

R. M. Pilkington, federal mediator, continued informal talks with workers and plant officials but said he would take no important action for two or three days.

Except for a few minor disturbances, picketing was peaceful.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Enderlin of Chillicothe, and Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Enderlin of this city are attending the convention of coal dealers in Columbus.

The Men's Social club of the Methodist church has postponed its May meeting, having decided to support the program sponsored by the Guild, to be held Wednesday evening at 8 p. m.

Charles A. Davenport, Chillicothe, has been re-elected chairman of the Ross-co Republican central committee. Creed Silbaugh is the secretary.

The relief office has changed its commodity distribution date from Friday to Thursday because of receipt of cabbage, a perishable item. All county distributors will come to Circleville to receive their supplies.

MISLAID LETTER FOUND IN HIGH-ST MAIL BOX

Someone in Chicago is going to receive a letter about five or six years late.

Ralph Ward, postoffice employee, recently removed the post box at High and Seloto-sts for repainting. In the top of the box he found a letter that had been placed in a top section of the box instead of the regular mailing slot. The last time the box was painted was five or six years ago.

The letter is on its way.

COMMISSIONERS SEEKING TRANSFER OF HIGHWAYS

Pickaway-co commissioners met with the Fairfield-co board Monday to clear details for the proposed transfer of the county line road to the state highway system.

The commissioners reported the road from the Washington-Walnut-line north is maintained by Fairfield-co and the balance by Pickaway-co. Fairfield-co asked to have the section north of the Lancaster-pk added to the state system. Local commissioners reported they did not know of the plan until after a hearing had been held.

They want the stretch between the Lancaster-pk and the Stoutsville road included and make arrangements with the Fairfield board to divide maintenance costs on the balance of the highway if the state approves the transfer.

Oil on Surface of Bay Threatens Ships

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—(UP)—Fire, sweeping through millions of feet of stacked lumber and endangering a half dozen ships, spread over a half-mile front today.

The flames spread along Channel street, from Seventh to Third streets. Blazing oil on the surface of the Third Street channel added to the hazards.

The oil-covered water of the channel caused the flames to spread, great columns of dense black smoke were visible for miles around San Francisco bay.

The bulk of the lumber at the Acme Lumber company yard was destroyed, and thousands of feet of lumber stacked on the docks of the Christianson and Smith Lumber companies were burned.

COUNTY 4-H COUNCIL PLAN SUMMER SESSION

Members of the Pickaway-co 4-H club council have voted to join with Fayette-co again this year for a club camp session.

The camp will be held in August at Camp Clifton, near Springfield, the same place as last year.

Outstanding livestock, crop and home economic clubs will be presented banners this year by the council.

A conference of officers and leaders will be held at Jackson-twp school either on June 11 or 12. The exact date has not been set.

COLLEGE BOYS BID FOR OWN CRUSOE ISLAND

HONOLULU (UP)—In an effort to solve for themselves the present economic condition in the United States, three Kalamazoo boys have applied to the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce for an uninhabited island in the Pacific.

They are Denver J. Todd, Earl H. Pierson and Frank S. Thompson, members, according to their letter, of the 1936 class of Kalamazoo College, Michigan, and charter members of the college chapter of the Share the Wealth Society. Their letter reads:

"Feeling ourselves unable to cope with the present day industrial situation and being dissatisfied with the economic order in this country, we would like to locate on a small island where we could live unhampered by the present competitive system."

John Hamilton, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, in his reply, pointed out that it would be difficult to get away from the American economic system in any island in the Hawaiian group, as they are all under American jurisdiction.

SCION OF KING SHORTENS NAME

HONOLULU (UP)—Bicentenary observances this year of the birth of King Kamehameha I will be attended by a direct descendant with the longest name in the world, officials of the ceremonies have announced.

King Kamehameha, whose bicentenary is to be celebrated, was the ruler and warrior who first welded the Hawaiian Islands into a kingdom.

The descendant who is to be present at the ceremonies is the great-great-great-great-grandnephew of the king.

His name, which is declared to be without a parallel in the world, is: "Samuel Albert Friedrich Henry William Crowninshield Kamehameha Kaulamokuauonani Kamehameha Amalu."

It is a combination of the names of descendants of Hawaii's "Great King" and a princely German family that intermarried.

HAWAII ARGUES FLOGGING ISSUE

HONOLULU (UP)—Flogging has been reintroduced at Oahu prison recently, reopening a public controversy concerning corporal punishment.

With the prison board's approval, Acting Warden Joseph Ordenshein ordered 30 lashes each be laid across the backs of Charles Cooper and Julian Eugster, incorrigible inmates who had defied all attempts to bring them into line of institutional routine.

The punishment is being spread over an extended period. The convicts first received six lashes each with a cat-o-nine-tails made of knotted rope. If their behavior does not improve they will be flogged periodically until the 30 lashes are administered.

The flogging recalled the celebrated Lucas Candido case of 1929. After twice escaping from prison, Candido was ordered flogged. The case went into the territorial circuit court on habeas corpus proceedings to enjoin prison authorities from flogging Candido.

The court forbade the use of the lash, but the territorial supreme court overruled the action, holding flogging a legal means of inflicting corporal punishment.

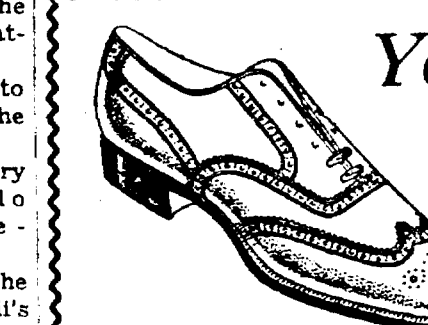

In actual life the royal descendant does not lay much stress either on his lineage or on the length of his name.

He is known as "Sam Amalu," which corresponds somewhat to the fashion whereby the present King of England, when Prince of Wales, was known as David Windsor.

The desirability of this abbreviation of the name is somewhat heightened by the fact that "Sam Amalu" is merely a freshman at the University at Hawaii and freshmen here are treated by upper classmen in about the same way that they are treated all over the world.

However, privately, Sam will admit his identity.

Sam follows the customs of his sires in that he never wears a necktie, but he concedes enough to modern life to wear a blue scarf around his throat and often a blue sash. Sometimes he carries a cane.

PYTHON IN ZOO FED BY FORCE EVERY MONTH

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Although "Blondie," 19-foot python, has spent nine years in the St. Louis Zoo, she continues indignantly to spurn food, and consequently has to be removed from her glass-enclosed "jungle scene" home once each month and forcibly fed.

Removal is accomplished by eight men well versed in python body slams and trick holds.

Keeper M. J. Lantz cautiously enters the cage, and flips a towel around the snake's head. He seizes the python behind the jaws and drags it through the cage door. Attendants seize sections of the powerful body and trail after Lantz.

Within 30 seconds "Blondie" is pinned to the floor—seven attendants on board.

After feeding, the python's teeth are examined and occasionally a little dental work is required. Armed with forceps, cotton and antiseptic, the dentist explores the reptile's upper and lower jaws for loose teeth which pythons try to shed.

The work completed, "Blondie" is carried back to the stage.
